Arlington News.

District-deputy Charles S. Richardson and suite paid an official visit to Malden lodge Monday evening.

Mr. J. T. Trowbridge and family are home from Kennebunkport, Me., where they have been occupying their summer residence for the past month.

We are neither thieves, trespassers or cut-throats here in Arlington that one need protect his grounds by instruments of torture and death.

The Grand council, Royal Arcanum, will institute a subordinate council on Monday evening, June 25, in Odd Fellows' hall. The council will start off with not less than 50 members.

Miss DeBlois, at 1008 Mass. avenue, closes her private school on Friday, June 22. The fall term will open somewhere about the middle of September. Miss DeBlois has a delightful school, and it is worthy the patronage of every father and mother in this vicinity.

Mr. John J. De Courcy, for seven years the telegraph operator at the Arlington station, has resigned his position and gone into business in Malden. Mr. De Courcy deals in bicycles and sporting goods. He is also manager of the Postal Telegraph Co. Mr. De Courcy was an exceedingly efficient and faithful manipulator of the telegraph, and his services were much appreciated by the patrons of the wires.

The letter carriers, a jolly good set of fellows, have come out with brand-new suits, in which they simply look "taking." Indeed, so nobly is their personal get-up, that all the pretty girls along their respective routes meet them half-way for their mail. Instead of the stripes as formerly around the sleeves, their is now on each sleeve of the new coat a star, which indicates five years' service in the postal department. Two stars on each sleeve indicate ten years' service in the department. While the letter carriers pay for these suits out of their own pockets, the government generously pays for the stars.

JUNE WEDDING.

That was a pretty June wedding on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Adams, 10 Addison street, when their daughter, Miss Dorothy Tempe Adams, and Mr. Ralph Nathan Smith, were married by the Rev. Frederic Gill, pastor of the Unitarian church.

The bride entered the beautifully-decorated room where the marriage ceremony took place leaning upon the arm of her father, who gracefully gave her to the groom. During the nuptial service the orchestra rendered Mendelssohn's "Midsummer night's dream," and, immediately following, Mendelssohn's "Wedding march" was played.

The bride was tastefully gowned in cream white crepe, meteor accordin pleated, trimmed with pearl and duchesse lace, wearing a tulle veil, fastened with lilies of the valley, and carrying a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Josephine Fernald of Medford, wore a dress of pink mousseline, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The bride's mother wore black grenadine over black silk, with vest of lavender and green crepe, trimmed with duchesse lace.

The sister of the bride, Mrs. H. C. Stanion, was gowned in black chantilly lace, over white silk, trimmed with turquoise blue velvet.

The ushers were Dr. Harry Beekman of Somerville, Frank Walker of Somerville, Frank C. Adams, brother of the bride, and George P. Fernald of Medford. The best man was Thomas Leighton of Cambridge.

There were a profusion of gifts from the many friends, both to the bride and groom, among which was a generous check from the father of the bride; a full set of table glass from the sheriffs of the county, in recognition of their friendly relationship with the groom in his official capacity as assistant clerk of the courts in Middlesex county. And then there were gifts of cut glass and silver and other pleasant remembrances of friends. We must not forget to make prominent mention of that beautiful crystal clock, a gift from the best man, Mr. Thomas Leighton.

The gift of the bride to the maid of honor was a handsome sapphire and diamond ring. The best man was remembered by the groom with a diamond stick pin, and the ushers received pearl stick pins from the groom.

The house was decorated in an artistic way throughout. The reception-room was hung with smilax, with lattice effect, while a part of the room abounded in orchids, smilax and roses, with grotto effect. The music-room was seen as a palm garden. The hall was arched with laurel vines. The staircases were entwined with crimson rambling roses. The dining-room was decorated with crimson roses. The pathway from the house to the large tent on the lawn, where supper was served, was made a long arbor of trailing vines, lighted with Japanese lanterns. The tent was made brilliant with electric lights hung in clusters of roses. The way leading from the street to the house was lined on either side with fir and cedar trees. The artist surely revealed his "cunning hand" in the decorations, and as seen on Wednesday evening, under the brilliant rays of the electric light, together with the softer rays of the moon, the scene was indeed fairy-like. But amidst all this attractive beauty of art and nature combined, the most beautiful and attractive of all, was the bride.

The travelling dress of the bride was dark blue broadcloth. After a wedding trip of three weeks, the happy couple will go to their new and pleasant home on Jason street.

The reception, from 8.30 to 11 o'clock, given by the bride and groom, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Adams and Miss Grace A. Smith, sister of the groom, was filled with the most cordial congratulations to the newly-married pair.

The number of guests at the reception were five hundred, representing Boston and suburbs. Among those from Arlington present were: Governor and Mrs. Brackett, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Devereaux, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hopier, the Misses Alice and Ethel Homer, Rev. Mr. Gill, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall N. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rice, the Messrs. Harold and Charles Rice, Wilson Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Judge Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hardy, Jr., C. S. Parker and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reed, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kidder.

Among those prominent in the society life of Chelsea, Mayor and Mrs. Gould were present to extend best wishes. There were also present several attaches of Middlesex county courts with their greetings.

The hacks were furnished by Mr. George A. Law, and his management of them was excellent.

The Enterprise extends to Mr. and Mrs. Smith its congratulations and best wishes for a prosperous and happy future.

A HOUSE WARMING.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Adam, who recently purchased the handsome residence at the corner of Mass. avenue and Wyman street, gave a house-warming on Tuesday evening, and also celebrated the 39th anniversary of their marriage. Some 75 friends were present. Members of Justice lodge, U. O. of I. O. L., of Cambridge, of which Mrs. Adam is a charter member, were among the guests, while Golden Rule lodge was well represented, and presented Mrs. Adam with a handsome cherry rocking chair. Mr. Adam was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. An artistic massive pitcher on a pedestal was another present to the happy couple.

During the evening there were selections of readings by Mrs. Roberts and piano selections by Miss Ida Law. A collation was served. The guests departed with wishes for many anniversaries.

A VALUABLE GIFT.

Mrs. S. C. Bushnell has shown herself delightfully generous and thoughtful in her exquisitely beautiful gift to Robbins library of the delicately-chiseled statue of Nydia—a blind girl in Bulwer's "Last days of Pompeii." Nydia is borrowed from Mignon, one of the creations of Goethe. Her birth was hardly less than a royal one. While in infancy she was stolen from her parents, and sold to a cruel taskmaster, but after years of abject slavery she was restored to her friends. Bulwer surrounds Nydia with all the sentiment and poetry of the most imaginative, while the distinguished sculptor, Rogers, has brought out in the beautifully-wrought marble all that sentiment and poetry which Bulwer has so glowingly expressed in words. The statue is mounted on a marble pedestal. The blind girl, in a posture inclining forward, is seen holding her right hand to her ear that she may audibly catch what she cannot see, something of the mutterings which foretell the oncoming destruction of Pompeii. The face, as represented by the artist, has all that sweetness and spirit of resignation which are heaven-born. Her drapery lies in graceful folds, while her hair in wavy ringlets shows that nature was the copy from which Rogers so put in objective form his highest ideal of grace and beauty.

The gift is a magnificent addition to the many attractions of Robbins library, so that the Enterprise hastens to join the many in the thanks now being extended to Mrs. S. C. Bushnell for this work, which is a refined and enduring specimen in human form of the highest art.

EXCITING GAME. ADVENTISTS TO CAMP.

A most exciting game of ball was played last Saturday on Lawrence field between the Arlington Boat club team and the Wellington nine. In the first inning the visiting team had the best of it, but from that out Bert Rankin pitched in his old-time form and put the men out nearly as fast as they came to bat. In the first part of the game Harold Wood was hit by a ball as it was being thrown while he was trying to make bases and was sent home. His place was taken by Cook of the High school team. There was great cheering when Loran batted the ball over into the cemetery and made a home run. Taking it altogether, it was as fine a game as the league teams could put up. The game was poorly attended, but should not be so, for a good game is always assured by our home team. Young Carr at short is a dandy, and his slides to bases are sure every time. The score was:

The New England conference of Seventh-Day Adventists will begin its third annual camp meeting in Arlington on Thursday, June 14, and continue its sessions until June 25. The camp is to be located on the Squires' estate on Mass. avenue, near Marathon street. The camp will consist of a large pavilion, 70x110 ft., and three other large tents, 24x48 ft., in which the meetings will be held, and there will be a hundred smaller tents, in which the Adventists and their friends will make their home during the conference. There will also be a tent for the youths' and children's meetings, where the younger people will assemble, as well as a tent for the sale of books and tracts.

This New England conference includes New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and has its headquarters at South Lancaster, this state. The conference was held last year in Providence, when 1000 Adventists were in attendance, besides hundreds of others who took in the meetings. The large pavilion has a seating capacity for 1000.

The exercises of the conference will include special services for Swedes, which will be conducted by Elder J. M. Erickson of Hartford, and services in the interest of Sunday school study, under the management of Miss Fannie M. Dickerson of the New England Sunday School association, and young people's meetings will be held daily.

Elder H. W. Cottrell of So. Lancaster, president of the association, will have charge of the camp meeting. Addresses will be delivered by Elder Allen Moon of Chicago, president of the International Religious Liberty association; Elder L. H. Evans of New York City, president of the Foreign Mission board; Elder G. B. Thompson, president of the New York conference; Elder H. W. Cottrell, president of the New England conference; Elder O. O. Farnsworth, vice-president; Elders F. W. Mace, C. H. Edwards, George E. Piffeld, S. A. Farnsworth, M. D. Mattson, F. C. Gilbert, D. B. Parmelee, A. H. Clark, G. B. Wheeler, C. C. Nicola and Prof. Frederick Griggs.

The camp discipline will be under the direction of the conference board, who will see that the meetings are quiet and orderly. The executive board consists of H. W. Cottrell, O. O. Farnsworth, D. M. Hull, S. A. Farnsworth and D. B. Parmelee.

Services will be held afternoon and evening, and the public are cordially invited. A Swedish tent will be erected, where services in this language will be held daily. Some 40 churches will be represented.

Through the courtesy of vice-president, O. O. Farnsworth, we are able to give the above details of the work. Elder D. M. Hull of So. Lancaster is the manager.

Arlington News.

All day Saturday there were preparations going on for the laying of new rails over the crossing, but it was not until afternoon that the large force of men was put on to rush the work. It was a sight to see the "gang" at work. Everything was systematically arranged and carried out. The men worked all night and all day Sunday, so that by six o'clock Sunday evening the cars were running on the new rails. For some time the road has seen the necessity of this move, and now that it is completed it will be of great convenience to the travelling public.

The South Middlesex conference, a fraternal and advisory association of Unitarian churches, which meets three times a year, will hold its summer session in the First Parish church, Arlington, next Wednesday, June 13. The meetings will be at 10.30 a. m. and 2 p. m. The principal speakers will be two of the foreign delegates at the recent Unitarian anniversaries in Boston: Rev. P. C. Mozoomdar of Calcutta, India, the head of the Brahmo Somaj of that country, and Rev. Tomoyoshi Murai of the Unitarian association of Japan. The former speaks in the morning, the latter in the afternoon. The singing will be led by the organ and a cornet. Delegates from other towns will be entertained at lunch in the Town hall by the ladies of the Arlington church. To the morning and afternoon sessions, the public are cordially invited.

IT SHOULD GO.

We mean by the above, the barbed wire fence. Why such cruel means to make safe one's private grounds from trespass, should have been allowed by the authorities we do not understand. One will find here in Christian Arlington this accursed fence put up by professedly Christian and humane men, so that children and older-grown may not get upon a foot of their grounds which they have only in keeping; for be it remembered that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." This fence of which we write is only an instrument of torture, and it is thrown around the private grounds and the broader acres for the sole purpose of hurting both man and beast should they attempt to cross the line named in the title deed. It is cruel. Yes, it is more, it is absolutely barbarous that any one should put such a fence around his grounds. Already there is more than one woman in Arlington who has recently had her skirts torn while walking during the evening along some of our sidewalks where the barbed wire fence is in close touch.

We earnestly appeal to Arlington people, so sensible and kind in other ways, that they immediately remove from their grounds this more than half-concealed instrument of painful and barbarous torture. We say "half-concealed," for one is not likely to see the barbed wire fence until the mischief has been done and the first blood drawn. It is only the other day that the good dog "Prince," that loving specimen of the canine race of which we have so frequently written, ran into one of these death-dealing fences and so mutilated his face that he has been taken to a dog-hospital in Boston. It is feared that "Prince" will finally lose his right eye, if not his life, by the cruel accident.

We have never known that father who has small children of his own in the home, to surround any part of his private grounds with this kind of a fence, of which the devil might feel proud to be known as its patentee. We feel sure that our people upon a thoughtful consideration of this matter will no longer tolerate what is so likely to do injury to the children and to the older-grown, as well as to the beasts of the field. The barbed wire fence must go.

THOSE BAND CONCERTS.

It will be something like a misfortune if those band concerts so much enjoyed by the stay-at-homes in Arlington last summer cannot be repeated this summer. Arlington, like many another New England town, is unfortunate in not having a common or park of convenient size located at the centre of its business life. Uniformly throughout the west, one will find a generous park in every town, around which the business interests of the locality centre. But here in good old New England, a spot of earth of which we boast so much, every inch of land not needed for our public streets is appropriated by the individual, so the moment one here in our little bit of country, gets out of the public highways or off the sidewalk he becomes a trespasser. When the evening comes on, those wishing to remain out of doors must "move on" or hang about the corners of the street or otherwise go home.

And all this is a peculiar disadvantage to the people of Arlington. Arlington should have right here at the centre of the town a common of not less than two or three acres. But she has no such accommodation, neither is she likely to have. In view of this fact, what can be done? The answer is, nothing can be done. Relief can only come as those owning grounds in common at the centre, shall be willing to lease them. It seems probable that no arrangement for the band concerts this coming season can be made unless, as has been suggested, the square in the public highway adjacent on Pleasant street to the grounds of the Unitarian church can be secured. But this is hardly possible. Why not secure Russell park for the purpose? Sure it is that we all want to "hear the band play."

WHY SHOULD YOU?

Why should you who read this editorial line think other people are so unlike yourself? Or, in other words, why should you suppose that you are fortunately better than your neighbor? How we all, more or less frequently, point the finger of shame and derision at this one and that one on account of faults and weaknesses which we stoutly disown so far as our own precious selves are concerned. While others are false to all the higher claims of friendship, we persistently declaim upon the house-top that we are true to all the social conditions and obligations of life. We are continually thanking God that we are not like other men, while the poor sinner at our side is all the while crying out, "God be merciful to me a sinner." Yes, the most of us will swear in the presence of the "wicked world" looking on that we are not only without sin, but that temptations do not even assail us. Not only ridiculous, but absolutely stupid is it that we evince such egotistical righteousness.

Allow us for one moment, dear reader, whether you live in Arlington or elsewhere, to get at you just as you are. You, like the rest of mankind, are substantially living two lives—the one is seen by the world, while the other is known in all its length and breadth and height and depth only to God and yourself. And yet we may approximate to your inner life, taking our own individual selves as the unit of measurement. Don't come to us saying you do no sin, neither longer insist that you are not tempted to do wrong every day in the week. There isn't a Christian man or woman who walks the streets who would not blush for very shame were his or her thoughts to be read and known by all men. In spirit we have all broken the commandments from top to bottom. In all God's world you will not be able to find a single exception to the above statement. So that when one tells us that he or she is living apart from all sin and temptation we simply hold our breath and put in our exclamation points. We simply know the facts to be otherwise, and this too from our individual experiences, so why not own up and tell God's truth? If we would only do so we should be more charitable to others. In such instance we should not have time to imagine and conjure up all evil things as belonging to our neighbor, for we should be too busy for such miserable work in putting our own house in order. We all need to get down on our knees and, not so much as looking heavenward, confess that our unfavorable judgment of others is largely the outcome of our own weak and fallen natures.

We urge upon you, and by this we mean you who are at this very moment reading what we herein have written, to reason out if you can why you should judge men and women, and affix the penalty thereto, instead of exclaiming with much earnestness, "I am the one at fault, please forgive." "We all live in glass houses," so we do well in not recklessly throwing stones on every side. Let the life you live before the world "go to the dogs," for it is a sham and a cheat from beginning to end. Instead of concealing yourself, reveal yourself. Come out into the open and allow people to call you by name. Help your neighbor instead of putting a stumbling-block in his way, knowing that you most of all need help. "Why," then, we ask again, "should you think other people are so unlike yourself?" Why, dear man and woman, we are all in the same boat, and so weighted down with human weaknesses that we are likely to go under at any moment unless some arm is outstretched to help us shoreward. Let us first cast the beam out of our own eye, then shall we see clearly just how to cast the mote out of our brother's eye. Remember that charity or love begins at home. No longer linger by the way and lose time in speaking ill of our neighbor and impugning his motives. Our own doorstep needs the broom first.

UP AND GO.

Up and go is the only way to make sure of your day off in the country. If the business man waits to make ready for the field and the woods he'll not likely get beyond reach of his office. Now is the time to see the country. Nature has all things at her best in leafy June. It was on Saturday of last week, with the glass right up among the nineties, that we hastily packed our carpet bag and put for New Hampshire, where we spent Sunday.

We made our way from Boston to Manchester, N. H., sweltering with heat. The moment, however, we struck the Queen City we caught a refreshing breeze from the open north-west. Manchester is rightly known as the Queen City of the Granite state. Her manufacturing industries have favorably advertised her the world over, she rating the fourth city in the United States in the manufacture of cotton goods. Manchester is, with her 70,000 population, essentially a rural city. She smacks of country life at every corner of the street. Her men and women, as one meets them, tell in their personal appearance and in their manner of speech of the country. By this we mean no unfavorable criticism. But it is evident to the visitor when he reaches this metropolis of New Hampshire that he is in a city which puts on no metropolitan airs. Her men and women are closely related to the "bold yeomanry." Manchester wears no frills. Nevertheless she is up to date in all that makes up a busy, enterprising life. Although she has no Fifth avenue or Beacon street, yet she is well to the front in that informal way of doing things which makes life so enjoyable to the commoner as well as to him or her who boasts of wealth and blood. In a word, Manchester is thoroughly democratic. She doesn't unpleasantly thrill her "r's," neither does she indefinitely delay upon her final "s's." She says what she has to say in plain English, without making any fuss about it. She meets you cordially and shakes hands, not in the Prince of Wales style, but in the good old-fashioned way. The truth is, Manchester has no kid-glove aristocracy.

The Queen city, however, was only an incident in our impromptu trip of Saturday. Candia was our objective point, a country town which remains today very much as God made it. Indeed it is one of those towns that has about it and in it all that is most delightful in the world of nature. Her skies, to us, seem the bluest, and her sunshine the brightest. Her varied and picturesque scenery can hardly be surpassed. Her fields at this season of the year are of deepest green, while her leaf and bud are the choicest and most fragrant.

It is not our purpose, however, to tell in detail of Candia. Substantially, our purpose is to urge those business men and women who read the Enterprise to make the best of this, one of the most attractive and refreshing months of the whole year. June is always inviting, and she in her country dress lays at your feet her choicest gifts. But to personally receive and appropriate her precious offerings you must go where they are. So we repeat, "Up and go." "Do not stand upon the order of your going," but go at once. The country in June is as "a bride adorned for her husband."

"And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays."

Get out into the country, good friend, and so see for yourself how God has placed all things at your disposal.

THE MONTH OF ROSES.

June in this latitude is known as the month of roses. It is now that the world blooms afresh. The air is filled with sweetest fragrance. The birds give out their softest melodies, and all nature is in sympathy with that which is purest and best. So that naturally enough the coy maiden is more successfully won by her bashful lover during these days of the delicate pink and the blushing rose, than at any other season of the year. The goddess of love chooses her time in which Cupid shall so shoot his darts as to capture two loving souls, thus making them one. Those burdened with wrinkles and with years, may laugh as they may, yet it is true that love is something more than mere sentiment. We profoundly pity that man and woman who have not at some period of their lives been "desperately in love," who have not lain awake nights thinking of each other, and only fallen at last into dreamy sleep which told one of the other. This falling in love is especially the privilege of youth. Who of us older-grown does not remember with the keenest pleasure the love experiences of those golden school days 'way back in the years that have long since flown? Whittier understood its sweet philosophy, or otherwise he could not have written the following of his little girl schoolmate, who reluctantly spelled the word he missed:

"He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
The soft hand's light caressing
And heard the tremble of her voice,
As if a fault confessing.
'I'm sorry that I spelt the word,
I hate to go above you,
Because, the brown eyes lower fell,
'Because, you see, I love you.'"

Don't be ashamed, boys and girls, to say that you are in love. There is something wrong in that boy who does not love a pretty girl, and there is something equally wrong in that girl who does not love a manly boy. Love such as the school boy and the school girl know through heart experience begets an inspiration that overcomes all impediments and hindrances in the way, and especially is this true during the "leafy month of June."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The trouble in China is taking on alarming proportions.

The Boston's seem to have struck an upward move. The club is playing ball in earnest.

Arlington is now over the 8000 mark and heading to become a city. How will the City of Arlington sound in a few years hence.

Congress adjourned on Thursday afternoon. Now President McKinley will have time to look after his interests for the coming four years.

Gen. Roberts seems to be making headway. And yet the Boer war is not over. It is war, war on every side, and still we live in a Christian age!

In the death of the Rev. Dr. Richard S. Storrs, Brooklyn, and the country as well, loses its most most brilliant pulpit orator and one of its profoundest scholars in theology.

There is not a man on all God's earth who has the right to hold and keep his millions while there are millions of his fellow-men dying for want of food. And we may add that there is no man in comfortable circumstances who has the right to withhold his mite in relieving the starving ones of India.

While Bryan is crying "down with the trusts," Tammany is up to its neck in the biggest kind of a trust. The New York ice trust is one of the wickedest frauds on record. Croker, Mayor Van Wyck and other leaders of the democracy are loaded down with ice stock. Governor Roosevelt is after the whole gang—good.

We were at the first meeting in which it was proposed to change the name of "West Cambridge" to "Arlington." The chief reason in selecting Arlington was the fact that there were but two towns in the whole country by the name of Arlington, one of these in Vermont and the other in Virginia.

The young people of the Universalist church will consider at their evening meeting tomorrow a topic appropriate to June, in which Children's Sunday occurs, "Eugene Field." A sketch of his life will be read and quotations made from his poems. Children's Sunday will be observed by this church June 24.

Thursday afternoon at about 4.15 a laborer, an Armenian, jumped from a moving electric car when about opposite the office of Dr. Greene. The man was taken into the doctor's office where it was found he was suffering with a fracture of the arm near the muscles. After dressing the arm the doctor accompanied the man to his home in Boston.

It is with pardonable pride we refer to the fact that from May 1 to May 31 over 100 names were added to our list of subscribers to the Enterprise. This speaks volumes for a newspaper not yet two years old, and testifies to the intelligent discrimination of the reading public in supporting an up-to-date and live weekly newspaper. Is your name on our list? The Enterprise only costs you $1.00 a year, delivered at your home.

Mr. A. D. Allen of Newburyport has taken the position vacated by Mr. J. J. De Courcy at Arlington station. Terrence Quinlan of Cambridge, while in the employ of the Boston Elevated company at Arlington on Monday, was struck by an iron bar falling, and for a little time was rendered unconscious. He was taken to the police station, when Drs. Hooker and Stickney were called. Quinlan was sent to the Cambridge hospital, where it was found he was injured between the hip and floating rib on the left side.

The little girls who are to render the play, entitled "Katherine's wedding," this afternoon at three o'clock, at 29 Academy street, the proceeds of which are to go to the starving of India, are to be commended in their desire to help the stricken children of that unfortunate country. The tickets are 10 cents each.

Mr. Abel Lawrence, who for so many years was a resident of Arlington, but who now resides with a married daughter in Melrose, was in Arlington on Thursday, visiting his old friends. Mr. Lawrence was 80 years old, on Thursday, and yet he looks like a man not more than 60 or 65 years of age. We were glad to see Mr. Lawrence. We well remember him as he was 40 years ago.

The Veteran Firemen were out on Wednesday evening to test Eureka after having given her a thorough and complete overhauling. The members were more than pleased at the excellent showing made. 200 feet was the distance played, which certainly is good work. Pepperell is the first muster the association will attend, so all aboard for Pepperell, July 28. There is to be a practice playout each Wednesday evening till the muster, so now is the time to get the brakes properly manned so as bring back that prize of $475.

Tomorrow, Bethel lodge No. 12, I. O. O. F., will, as we announced last week, observe the day as Memorial day. In the morning the brothers will go to St. John's church, where Rev. Jas. Yeames has prepared for them an excellent sermon. Immediately after the service, the brothers will decorate the graves of the deceased Odd Fellows. The members are urged to bring flowers.

In making our usual trip up Mass. avenue on Thursday morning we dropped in for a moment on Mr. W. G. Kimball, the builder and contractor, one of our advertisers. We found Mr. Kimball busy at his office drawing the plans of a house he is soon to erect. Aside from his regular work, Mr. Kimball is doing much in the line of jobbing and repairing. Mr. Kimball can do anything, and do it well, to which he puts his hand.

The brown-tailed moth has found its way to Arlington, and is putting in its destructive work upon many of our trees. Mr. Thomas J. Robinson told us the other day that one of his pear trees had been completely killed by this moth, and he added that he scraped off from another tree as much as two quarts of these pestiferous insects. Mr. Robinson became badly poisoned in coming in touch with the moth. Gov. Crane will need to expend some of that hundred thousand dollars asked for by Representative Crosby's bill, here in Arlington.

Letter-carrier Cleary met the other evening with a peculiar accident, and that it did not prove a distressing one is due to Mr. Cleary's lucky star. It all happened, as we understand, in this way: Mr. Cleary was about to jump a fence just as the twilight was coming on, and while he cleared the fence proper, his coat caught in the single wire of barbed fence which Mr. Cleary could not see, and completely robbed him of his coat tail. Mr. Cleary is congratulating himself that he came off as well as he did.

Mr. Timothy J. Harrington, brother of Mr. J. W. Harrington, the painter and decorator at 450 Mass. avenue, met with a painful accident on Wednesday forenoon while painting a house for Mrs. A. M. Kyne at 995 Mass. avenue. Mr. Harrington had placed his gutter ladder over the back porch, and while at work the rung on which he was standing broke. He fell on the stairs below, a distance of about 18 feet. It was found that his face was badly cut and his back badly sprained, and after being conveyed home Dr. L. E. Allen was called. At the present writing Mr. Harrington is doing nicely, although it will be some time before his back will be strong again.

We made a call Wednesday evening on Prof. Bartlett at his home, 216 Pleasant street, for the purpose of learning definitely of the accident that befel his dog "Prince." We found it true that his dog had run into some of the Arlington barbed wire fence and terribly cut or tore one side of its face, and nearly tore out one eye of the faithful dog. "Prince" was immediately taken to a hospital in the city, where he is receiving every care, hoping thereby that his injured eye may be saved. Prof. Bartlett quite agrees with us that it is substantially a fiendish act to put this barbed wire fence around garden, field or pasture. The barbed wire fence ought and must go.

A walk Wednesday evening throughout the length of that part of Lake street which is in Arlington, confirmed us in the opinion we have long had, that Lake street is one of the most attractive avenues in Arlington. Its residences all along the way tell of comfort and thrift, while the private grounds surrounding the same are neatly kept. And then again, its people are enterprising and modern in their idea of things. They keep themselves well to the front in all that relates to the best interests of the town. Yes, Lake street is up to date.

Drivers Sullivan, Corbett and Austin of Ladder 1 and Hose 3 have given the house a thorough cleaning this week. The wood work has been brightened by the scrubbing it has undergone, the iron work has been repainted, the cellar overhauled, and everything about the house put in shape. The house never looked better. It is hoped that those in charge of the repairing of the various stations will partition off a portion of the hall so the drivers may have a suitable sleeping room.

Some state legislation is needed concerning the number of passengers the electric car may carry. It is absolutely barbarous to pack the cars as they are now being packed. We came out the other day from Boston on a car registering 103 passengers! Street cars in Germany have conspicuously displayed the number of passengers which they are permitted to carry. When the stated number is on the car no other passengers will be allowed to enter. Policemen on the streets in Hamburg are instructed to watch the cars sharply, and if they find a car which carries a single passenger more than the number allowed by law, the conductor is fined 72 cents. The other week a car conductor in one of the larger cities of Scotland was fined $5 for carrying more than the allotted number of passengers.

What is being done here in Arlington for the starving millions in India? Famine in that far-off country from lack of rain is now doing its worst. Birds of the air drop lifeless from the skies of brass. The decaying bodies of men and beasts pollute both plains and rivers. We are glad that there is an organized movement being made in Arlington to aid in the relief of death-stricken India. In addition to this organized effort, or in connection with it, there should be immediately a house-to-house canvass for money to send those starving ones. Remember that two to five cents a day will save life. Ten cents a day will provide food for a starving family. Five dollars will give a meal to 250 starving people. Now let Arlington bestir herself as never before, and visit every household in aid of that stricken people. We do not believe there is a man, woman or child in Arlington who would not give something for so worthy and so demanding a cause. That religion which will not reach India in these days of her terrible affliction, is not worth the having.

GOLF CLUB.

A committee of ladies of the Golf club will serve this afternoon five o'clock tea to the members and their friends. In the evening a hop will take place.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS—Continued.

An entertainment of a unique and pleasing nature was given by the entertainment committee of the Park avenue Congregational church Christian Endeavor society on Thursday evening, and was aptly termed a "Seven Sociable," the price for admission and for refreshments during the evening being seven cents. The program, the various numbers of which were announced by Mr. Snow, was a very attractive one. After a piano duet by Misses Westcott and Helen Bridgman, a series of tableaux, representing "The seven ages of woman," followed, and proved a prominent feature of the evening. A poem was read by Miss Annie Tufts in a pleasing manner. Solos were well sung by Miss Josephine Learned, and by Master Edward Donlan of Cambridge. Several readings were very effectively rendered by Mrs. Wm. Webber, while Mr. Fred Derby gave several violin solos with his accustomed taste and masterly execution. A pleasing number was given by Misses Learned, Mann, Elna Bridgman, Helen Bridgman, Dweley, Averil and Westcott. The encores were frequent and well deserved. Misses Westcott and Ethel Tewksbury acted as accompanists.

Linguistic Oddities.
"I came across a colored man who spoke with a German accent the other day," said a prominent stockbroker. "I dropped into a restaurant not far from the city hall for lunch, and the waiter who took my order, although unmistakably a colored man, spoke as though he had just come from some Pennsylvania Dutch settlement up the state. The thing was so pronounced that I spoke to the proprietor about it and found that my suspicions were correct. The man was a full blooded negro, but he had been born and raised in a small town near Reading and had always associated with the whites who spoke Pennsylvania Dutch. Queer, isn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know!" said one of the party whose business takes him through the west. "A short time ago I came across a German who spoke English with a decided Irish brogue. He was an educated young fellow, a graduate of a German university, and he was very anxious to learn English. He drifted out to Chicago and from there to a lumber camp up in Wisconsin. Here, he thought, would be an excellent chance to learn the language. But all the men in the camp were Irishmen. Of course the young German didn't know that, and he fell readily into their mode of speech. At the end of a year he returned to Chicago, very proud of having mastered our tongue, and was greatly surprised to discover that he had a brogue. That was several years ago, but he has never lost it. It clings to him as closely as though he had been born in County Antrim."—Philadelphia Record.

Evidence Lacking.
In 1870 the contractors' firm of Comstock & White was doing business at Fort Wallace. In the course of a quarrel Comstock killed White. White had a brother in New York, a lawyer, who came out to visit the law upon his brother's slayer. Comstock was arrested and brought before Judge Joyce at Hays City. The prisoner walked into the courtroom (Judge Joyce's saloon) with two big six shooters belted to his hips.

"Misther Comstock, ye are charged with willful murder. Are ye guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge.
"Guilty!" was the laconic response.
This was entirely beyond Judge Joyce's calculations. He had no precedent for such a case and no power or inclination to visit out a penalty, and so, with great indignation, he shouted: "Ye are a fool for tellin' it! Did any wan see ye do it?"
"No," was the prisoner's response.
"Thin Oi discharge ye fer want of evidence," declared his honor, and thereupon all the boys moved up to the bar and took "sunthin'" with Mr. Comstock.
But imagine the feelings of Mr. White of New York, who had come to avenge his brother's slaying!—Kansas City Journal.
